PUTTING RURAL COMMUNITIES ON MAP BY CO-OPERATION IS MOST EXCELLENT PLAN

Many Country Neighborhoods Are Coming to Realize the Value of Community Gatherings From a Commercial as Well as a Social Standpoint.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Communities, as well as firms and individuals, can reap legitimate profits through advertising. In her day Rome was a big advertiser and kept at it so persistently that eventually all roads led to that metropolis. From the standpoint of legitimate municipal publicity, America has several Romes. But this sort of co-operative advertising is not monopolized by the big centers. Indeed there are scores of communities—rural and semirural—that have put themselves on the map in big red letters. Their fame has not been restricted by their small size. The secret lies in their emphasizing some local product which the community is well suited to produce, and getting all interested persons to do their very best in that line.

A purse is trash compared with a good name, according to Shakespeare, and many towns recognizing the inestimable value of a good name have built up reputations that have lined the purses of those forming the community. For example, Monroe county, in southern Wisconsin, has built up a national reputation for the fine quality of its cheese. Not the least factor in winning and keeping leadership in this line has been the annual cheese day, a splendid community event at which quantities of the delicious product of the region are given away in sandwiches and in other forms to thousands who share in the occasion.

What Monroe county has done with cheese, Carrizozo Springs, Tex., has done with strawberries. The whole countryside in the vicinity of this village joins in honoring its favorite product each season. Distinguished citizens come from miles around to take part in the festivities. The governor of the state counts it a privilege to be present.

Plowing Made a Fine Art.

That the humblest of farm tasks can be honored and exalted by community effort and the community in turn greatly profit thereby is shown by the record of the Wheatland plowing match in northern Illinois. This annual event, instituted something like half a century ago along lines followed by the founders' ancestors in Scotland, attracts annually 10,000 to 15,000 people. Here plowmen of all ages are divided into classes, the members of which compete for prizes offered for the best work done with riding, walking and tractor plows. The reputation for skill in agriculture created by this annual event has been worth an incalculable amount to the farmers of this region, and partly because of it Wheatland farms and Wheatland products are considered among the best in the whole Mississippi valley.

The orange growers of California have learned a similar lesson. Each year they hold a magnificent orange festival which is one of the big events of the Pacific coast, attracting as many as 25,000 people, some of them from distant states. The rivalry for honors has done much to raise and maintain high standards among the orange growers of the region.

A community celebration of a somewhat different character but equally effective in its advertising power, is the Ground-Hog day picnic at Punxsutawney, Pa. At this novel annual event farmers, politicians and former residents to the number of many thousands gather to share in eating a splendid repast, the principal feature of which is ground-hog meat. The meat is cooked in barbecue fashion and invariably wins the praise of the celebrants. Speeches and informal hearty greetings of old friends occupy the afternoon. While this event is not designed to advertise a farm product, its distinctive character and the fine spirit of hospitality that obtains puts Punxsutawney and the surrounding country on the map.

Texas Turkey Drives Famous.

The little town of Cuero, Tex., has won fame from ocean to ocean because of its turkey drives. Drivers of turkeys within a radius of 100 to 150 miles bring in flocks of birds on foot. The fowls travel at a slow rate during daylight and at dusk instinctively huddle together, while their drivers camp by the roadside until dawn, when the journey toward Cuero, a Mecca of turkeydom, is resumed. The culminating feature of this event is the turkey parade in which all of the drivers lead their flocks through the principal streets of the town. On a recent turkey day no less than 28,000 birds were in the procession. Following the parade the turkeys are loaded on cars and shipped to markets in all parts of the country.

There are thousands of communities which might undertake a celebration similar to these cited. In some cases the spring is the appropriate season, in others the fall or summer is the logical time. The first need is for an association or individual to gather together persons interested in promoting this idea. The winter days, when the farm work is less strenuous, offer an opportunity for preliminary conferences. The office of farm management of the United States department of agriculture will be glad to offer any inquiries suggestions regarding the best methods of promoting such events.

HELPS IN MARKETING WOODLAND PRODUCTS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Get prices for various wood products from as many sawmills and other wood-using plants as possible.

Before selling, consult neighbors who have sold timber, and benefit from their experience.

Investigate local timber requirements and prices. Your products may be worth more locally because transportation is saved.

Advertise in papers and otherwise secure outside competition for your product.

Secure bids, if practicable, both by the lump and by log-scale measure.

Be sure that you are selling to responsible purchasers.

Get a reliable estimate of the amount and value of the material before selling.

Market the higher grades of timber and use the cheaper for farm purposes.

Remember that standing timber can wait over a period of low prices without rapid deterioration.

Use a written agreement in selling timber, especially if the cutting is to be done by the purchaser.

CUT BADLY DISEASED TREES

Excellent Forestry Practice to Use All Inferior Specimens in Wood Lot for Fuel.

It is an excellent forestry practice to cut out the badly diseased, crooked, overcrowded, inferior trees in a wood lot for fuel wood, giving more growing space to the straight, promising young trees, according to forestry specialists of the United States department of agriculture. In some cases, such as in stands of old pines, a few large trees should be left for seed to re-stock the land, unless the area is to be cleared. In many sections of the country the present high prices of coal have made profitable a renewal of the wood fuel industry so that many farmers are finding it worth their while to clear out the less desirable trees in cordwood or shorter lengths.

IF BACK HURTS USE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if Kidneys feel like lead or Bladder bothers.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulates them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

Good Night Tip.

"Is that your father I hear coming downstairs?" asked the startled young man of the fair young thing by his side on the parlor sofa.

"No, George," replied the girl, looking inquiringly at the clock on the mantel; "you won't hear papa when he does come down."

CREAM FOR CATARRH OPENS UP NOSTRILS

Tells How to Get Quick Relief from Head-Colds, It's Splendid!

In one minute your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh will be gone.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed-up with a cold or nasty catarrh—Relief comes so quickly.—Adv.
